Customer Reviews

You will shriek with laughter at these ridiculously low-end recipes. Many of them resemble recipes printed on grocery product boxes. I wasn't aware I had purchased a joke-a-day type of calendar but that's what this is. Potato Chicken Cheese Soup made with industrial packaged au gratin potatoes! Brownie Balls! After-School Mix with chex cereal, chocolate chips, peanut butter, butter, and sugar, now that's just the thing to bloat up your lard-butt kids between meals! Cheddar Ale Soup, no kidding. Beef and Corn Bake using canned tomato soup. And the inevitable cans of cream of mushroom soup and cream of celery soup (Chicken Enchiladas). The whole philosophy of doing your own cooking is to use fresh, natural ingredients, to avoid packaged foods loaded with chemicals and extenders, and to reduce fat/salt/sugar to sensible levels. We're living in an epidemic of obesity and diabetes, yet this calendar promotes unhealthy cooking at its worst. And it doesn't supply any tips or hints about cooking techniques and methods.

Some of the recipes look great and some look way too easy. My friend liked it as her gift. :-)

Have made several of the recipes and will definitely order a new one for next year.

Bought it for a gift but the person who received it likes it very much.

I enjoy page a day desk calendars and this one looks to be a fun source for new recipes.
