Customer Reviews

In Dinosaurs for Kids, Ken Ham of Answers in Genesis has asked us to consider that there was not an Age of Dinosaurs. Rather there have been seven "ages" of dinosaurs, alliterated as 7 Fâ™s. Formed â “ Dinosaurs were created on Day 6 with Man Fearless â “ Man and dinosaurs co-existed without fear in Godâ™s perfect Creation. Fallen â “ Due to the effects of the Fall, carnivory begins. Since some dinosaurs eat meat now and since man is essentially meat, wellâ |.

the honeymoon is over! Flood â “ The Great Flood destroys all life except that aboard the Ark. The majority of fossils are formed at this time. Faded â “ The dinosaurs leave the Ark. Due to changes in climate and other factor [an Ice Age, for example] dinosaurs slowly go [mostly] extinct. Memories of dinosaurs as dragons take on some fantastical elements as the real creatures begin to fade from observable ecology. Fossils â “ As noted, scientists begin to discover dinosaur bones and realize they were a distinct class of creatures no longer seen on Earth. Fiction â “ The age in which we now live, where secular scientists, textbooks and museums tell us that dinosaurs lived millions of years ago, that they evolved into birds and other fictions. Bill Mooney's illustrations are beautifully done. The book does a great job of relating dinosaurs from a Biblical perspective in an entertaining way and gives an invitation to the Gospel at the end, so bonus! The only drawbacks to this book are in its formatting. If you're reading it to children, well, good luck. It doesn't read well. Little fact boxes, in the form of single text boxes and Four Fast Facts pepper the sections of this book. I think they do make the book more interesting, but it makes reading it to smaller children a bit of an ADHD experience!
