Customer Reviews

While I have only had this book for a day, so far I'm surprisingly impressed with it. The book itself is 11" high x 8 1/2" wide x 7/16" thick with a spiral binding that allows the book to be completely opened. The pages themselves are all heavy-weight and coated (including the insides of the front and back covers which are each labeled as a "Practice Page") for dry-erase marker use. The book I received came with one slightly thicker than usual black dry-erase marker tucked into the spiral binding itself and is recommended for ages 3 and up. The book itself is broken into the following sections: 1) Letters: Goes through the entire alphabet from "a" to "z" with a half a page devoted to each. It starts off with a 1/2" example of how to write the capital version of the letter, followed by two dotted representations for a child to practice with, and ending with enough room for the child to practice approximately three more free-hand. The book then has the same for the corresponding small version of the letter. The remainder of the 1/2 page per letter has either two or three colorful pictures of something that has the letter in it (once again with dotted representations of the particular letter for the child to practice with) as well as the occasional "game" (such as "circle each letter b"). I like that the examples used don't always start with the letter being covered ("O" uses owl, orange, and spoon).2) Animals: Has appealing pictures of various animals with dotted "drawings" for the child to connect to help them practice co-ordination.
