I used to eagerly await the publication of Roger Edrinn's fourteeners calendar. Unfortunately, 2002 was the last year for which he did one. The void has since been filled by Skyline Press. This calendar provides a standard presentation of each month divided into a grid of five weeks. There is also a page for November/December 2014. Each page is placed below a mountain photograph page. The pages are fourteen by eleven inches. Each day in the calendar grid has its own 1-7/8 by 1-7/8 inch box, leaving sufficient space for notes. Astronomical events and holidays are indicated. The 2015 calendar has some impressive photographs. This year, the 14ers pictured are: Castle Peak, Pyramid Peak, Grays Peak, Torreys Peak, Mount Harvard, Little Bear Peak, Mount Democrat, Culebra Peak, Uncompahgre Peak, Windom Peak, Sunlight Peak, Mount Wilson, Redcloud Peak, Mount Bierstadt, Mount Belford, and Mount Princeton. I have climbed eleven of these. This year's September photo of the saddle between Sunshine and Redcloud brought back memories. Normally, this is an easy traverse. I have done it in both directions. However, the last time, also in September, we were caught in the late afternoon in a snowstorm whiteout with the air so charged that it was buzzing. We did make it over Redcloud and down safely, hiking the last two miles in the dark. I recommend this calendar for anyone who is a fourteener fanatic or who likes mountain photographs. If it is sold out and you cannot get to the Tattered Cover, there are other web sites which may still have one: "Calendars" or "Skylinepress."

This calendar is the second one I've had. I also had the 2014 calendar. It has great photos and lets me relive past climbs and dream about future ones. It keeps my beloved mountains in mind while I'm in my office.

To anyone who loves Colorado, especially those who love to hike Colorado's famed "fourteeners" (mountains over 14,000 feet), this calendar is a must! Mr. Caudle's breathtaking photography celebrates a Colorado peak every month. Beautiful and inspiring!

One thing I like about the pics is that while obviously professionally done they aren't fake looking like some Thomas Kincade painting.

Awesome photos of Colorado mountains! Made a great Christmas gift for my kids living in CO, hoping it inspires them to climb a few!
